PAULINE E. HOPKINS

Hopkins, Pauline E. "The Evils of Intemperance and Their Remedy," an essay. n.d. Original manuscript.

________. "One scene from the Drama of Early Days." n.d. An account of the biblical story depicting Daniel in the lion's den. Original manuscript.

________. "Peculiar Sam, or the Underground Railroad. A musical drama in four acts. 1879. Original manuscript and a typewritten copy.

________. Sheet music or orchestration for "The Flight for Freedom or the Underground Railroad." Individual copies for each instrument, 1st and 2nd violins, cornet, bass, and clarinet. Arranged by T.E. Jeffery, Boston. The original scores.

"Hopkins' Colored Troubadours Guitar Players and Southern Jubilee Singers, will give one of their pleasing entertainments, consisting of Jubilee Singing, the sweetest ever heard, under the auspices of the Royal Arcanum, at Arcanum Hall, Allston, Friday evening, Nov. 24, 1882." A program.

A notebook in original handwriting of the story of "Peculiar Sam." Variant title: the "Slaves' Escape; or, the Underground Railroad."

Several pages or a section of a book which deals with "Military Societies." The one society seemingly of concern was the "Society of the Cincinnati." A handwritten inscription reads "Afro-American Society of the Cincinnati for the descendants of officers of the Army and Navy of the American Revolution 1776-1783."
Untitled play. n.d. (The story of a slave's efforts to avenge his former master, whose property has been stolen and his daughter abducted.) Three typewritten copies and the original manuscript. Opening line: "How time flies."
