Papers, 1909-1946
Size of Collection, 19 linear feet

Robert Ezra Park was one of the leading sociologists of his time. The collection consists mainly of correspondence, but includes also notes for his publications and classroom lectures. Among Park's correspondents were leading American sociologists and educators such as Donald Breed, Cedric Dover, Bingham Dai, Andrew Lind, Donald Pierson, Louis Wirth, Monroe Nathan Work, and C. K. Yang. Letters from several German and East European sociologists seeking asylum in the United States during the 1930s are included. There is also correspondence between Park and friends in the Orient during the SinoJapanese War. The close working relationship between Park and Charles S. Johnson is revealed in the collection.

Among Park's works represented are Human Ecology, Race Relations Cycle in Hawaii, The Nature of Race Relations, Physics and Society, Social Function of War, Modern Society, and Education and the Cultural Crisis. Numerous boxes with notes and revisions of his works are included.

In addition to the publications in book form, the collection includes miscellaneous pamphlets, reprints, and booklets; there are also manuscripts, bulletins, clippings, and interviews.
