BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

William Edward Burghardt Du Bois (1868-1963) was a trans-disciplined author, business developer, economist, editor, educator, organizational architect, researcher, and social agitator. His preeminence as a pioneering historian and sociologist situated him as an established intellectual through national and international standards in the 20th century. He was known as one of the most widely heard and read voices of African American leadership during his era, both respected and despised alike.

Born February 23, 1868 in New Barrington, Massachusetts, Du Bois attended and graduated valedictorian from Great Barrington High School. During these early years he simultaneously served as correspondent for the New York Age, New York Globe, and Springfield Republican, all by the tender age of sixteen. While a student at Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee, Du Bois edited the student newspaper the Fisk Herald, and taught in rural schools during the summers before securing his B.A. in 1888. Upon graduation from Fisk, he began matriculating with junior classification at esteemed Harvard College in Cambridge, Massachusetts from which he graduated cum laude with another B.A. in 1890. Du Bois' graduate schooling commenced that same year and from 1892 to 1894, under a fellowship from the Slater Fund, studied at the University of Berlin. From 1894 to 1896 Du Bois' college professor career was established as a lecturer in Latin and Greek at Ohio's Wilberforce University. 1896 also proved a pivotal year in his career because his dissertation, The Suppression of the African Slave Trade, earned him his PhD in history and was published by Harvard University Press.

A one year stint as sociology professor at Pennsylvania University from 1896 to 1897 produced the seminal sociological study The Philadelphia Negro, considered one of the first urban sociology studies in the world and arguably the first on United States soil. While sustaining appointments in economics, history, political science, and sociology at Atlanta University from 1897 to 1910, the young scholar's agency emerged as a principle organizer/researcher of the Atlanta University Studies. The turn of the century proved to be significant for Du Bois as his 1903 The Souls of Black Folk became a staple in political theory for African Americans. Leadership as Founder and General Secretary of the Niagara Movement from 1905-1909, rallying the call for the Pan African Congress in Paris in 1919, representing the United States as Special Ambassador at the Liberian presidential inauguration in 1923, and the subsequent founding NAACP capacities served as board member, director of publicity and research, and founder and editor of the organization's monthly magazine The Crisis from 1910-1934, demonstrated Du Bois' rare agility at balancing the line of political activist/organizer, public servant, and scholar congruently.

The decade from 1934 to 1944 was one where Du Bois carried out a hiatus from his duties and membership with the NAACP. In the interim he chaired the sociology department at Atlanta University and published Black Reconstruction. Resuming his post as director of publicity and research for the NAACP from 1944 to 1948, he attended the founding conference of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945 as the organization's official representative. Diverse political work continued in 1948 when he co-chaired with Paul Robeson the Council on African Affairs, 1950 as he became the chair for the Peace Information Center in New York and the New York Progressive Party's candidate for United States Senate. In this same year, his wife Nina died.

In 1951 Du Bois remarried noted author, composer, and social advocate Shirley Graham, and endured embattlement from the Justice Department who formally indicted, made stand trial, and ultimately acquitted him of subversive activities charges. The last twelve years of Du Bois' life represented continued transformation as he traveled extensively throughout the world lecturing and writing. In 1958 he won the Lenin Peace Prize and in 1961 became a member of the Communist Party U.S.A. Additionally, in 1961 Du Bois accepts an invitation to Ghana from its president Kwame Nkrumah to edit the Encyclopedia Africana. In 1963 William Edward Burghardt Du Bois became a citizen of Ghana and died on August 27.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The W.E.B. Du Bois Collection contains 128 boxes divided into 8 series: Correspondence; Accounts, Bills, Personal Records, & Receipts; Lecture Engagements; Organizational Affiliations; Writings; Collected Material; Miscellaneous Materials; and Oversized Materials.

Series I: Correspondence

Within Correspondence, six subseries are contained: Family; Personal; General; Professional; Telegrams; and Travel. The Family subseries is limited to a few documents concerning his first wife Nina and his only daughter Yolanda, and the Personal subseries contains records regarding his health and insurance. The General subseries contains personal letters from such scholars as Herbert Aptheker, author and historian; Ruth Anna Fisher, elite 19th and 20th century black American family descendent, and Oberlin graduate dismissed from teaching duties at Tuskegee Institute by Booker T. Washington in a notable 1906 case; Anna Melissa Graves, educator, internationalist, and writer; and Frene Talyarkhan, Indian broadcaster. The Professional subseries is represented through documents of communication with diverse local, state, national, and international groups including, but not limited to, the American Colonization Society, the North Carolina Historical Commission, the Richmond Democratic League, and the United States Department of Justice. The Telegram subseries is very small and relates primarily to international travel; there is a reference to Du Bois' meeting with an unnamed Indian high-ranking official. The remaining subseries, Travel, contains records of Du Bois interactions with various modes of transportation, such as air (the Transcontinental and Western Air Company), water (the Cunard and the United States Steamship lines), and railroad (the Pullman Office). The latter subseries also holds personal correspondence, such as letters between Du Bois and George Lundberg, 33rd president of the American Sociological Society; and Samuel Guy Inman, acclaimed educator, Latin American authority, and advisor to president Franklin Delano Roosevelt's "Good Neighbor Policy."

Series II: Accounts, Bills, Personal Records, & Receipts

The Accounts, Bills, Personal Records, & Receipts series holds documents pertaining to Du Bois' personal affairs, both financial and health-related. Records here are arranged among seven subseries: Correspondence; Daily Memoranda Sheets; Health, Insurance & Annuities; Personal Accounts; Property Maintenance, Repairs, & Upkeep; Energy, Telephone, & Water Supply; and Freight & Storage. The Correspondence subseries holds records of communication between Du Bois and companies primarily related to real estate, such as Nail & Parker Real Estate and the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, while the Daily Memoranda Sheets subseries holds his notes pertaining to how he arranged and managed his day-to-day personal activities. Both cover the decade 1920 to 1930. Contained within the Health Insurance & Annuities subseries are business transactions and personal records including physical examinations, policy receipts, specimen analyses, and x-rays.

Series III: Lecture Engagements

Du Bois had many Lecture Engagements. Such engagements were consistent components of his professional activity and social advocacy. Contained within the series are twelve subseries: Correspondence; Announcements; Brochures & Bulletins; Content; Descriptions; Invitations; Menus; Programs; Receipts; Reports; Schedules; and Tickets. The focus is communication between Du Bois, his booking agents, and various entities soliciting his services, and the marketing and production records that carry evidence of the events occurring. The content used for the Lecture Engagements is located within the Writings series. These are civic organizations and professional associations, including the African American Order of Orioles, the American Academy of Political & Social Science, and the John Brown Memorial Association. Higher education institutions are there as well, and include historically black Fisk University, Livingstone College, and Talladega College; and Ivy League institutions, such as Harvard and Yale universities.

Series IV: Organizational Affiliations

The Organizational Affiliations series contains evidence of activity through twelve subseries: American Christian Palestine Committee; American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born; Atlanta University; Circle for Negro War Relief, Inc.; Committee on Africa, the War, and Peace Aims; Council on African Affairs; Families of the Smith Act Victims; First Universal Races Congress; International Conference of Africa; NAACP; Pan-African Congress; and World Peace Organizations.

The first two subseries—American Christian Palestine Committee and American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born—are small, but contain evidence of correspondence with organizational officials. The Atlanta University subseries is extensive and is arranged based on its administrative structure, from the board of directors to academic departments. Records of seminar lectures, course outlines, and research proposals are contained as well.

The Circle for Negro War Relief, Inc. subseries contains correspondence with Emilie Hapgood, producer of the landmark Three Plays for a Negro Theatre by Ridgely Torrence, and executive committee minutes and promotional material. The Committee on Africa, the War, and Peace Aims subseries includes Du Bois' work as a consultant for the NAACP serving with the United States delegation, and his work with the post-WWII plight of African colonies at the founding meeting of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. The Council on African Affairs subseries holds organizational records from 1945 to 1955. Du Bois and Paul Robeson, the virtuoso and social activist, co-chaired the council. Valuable documents including pamphlets and records from proceedings at the First Universal Races Congress in London, 1911, and listings of members of the International Conference of Africa, 1944, 1947 are contained within the respective subseries and may prove beneficial to researchers concerned with the global approach and practice of Du Bois, with particular emphasis on Pan-Africanism.

The most extensive subseries is the NAACP. The arrangement follows the organizational structure, from annual conferences at the national level to state and local branches. Records document the dynamic and multilayered relationship between the organization he co-founded in 1909; he resigned from the NAACP in 1934, rejoined in 1944, and left permanently in 1948. The subseries holds correspondence with organizational officials, such as Mary White Ovington, Joel Spingarn, James Weldon Johnson, Walter White, Roy Wilkins, and Mary Church Terrell. One letter from Terrell is written to Du Bois to confirm that she was in fact a founding member, a request he validates accordingly. Board of directors' minutes, committee activities, and departmental reports also can be found in this subseries. A large number of records pertain to Du Bois' activities with the Crisis Publishing Company. There are advertising invoices, content notes and final drafts of material published or considered for publication; these records help to document opportunities for younger artists and authors during the Harlem Renaissance. Correspondence with judges for the 1924-1925 Amy Spingarn Prize in Literature & Art includes Eugene O'Neill, famed Nobel Prize-winning playwright; and Henry Ossawa Tanner, noted African American painter.

Records of Du Bois' involvement with Pan-African movements appear again in the Pan-African Congress subseries. Correspondence, applications, and reports from the 1919, 1921, 1923, and 1945 congresses are included. World Peace Organizations subseries closes out the series and primarily contains records that document Du Bois' role with anti-fascism groups in the 1930s and his subsequent socialist activity after being dismissed from the NAACP in 1948. Included in the subseries are records from the American Committee for Struggle against War; American Committee for World Congress against War; American League against War & Fascism; American Peace Crusade; Committee for Peaceful Alternatives; Congress of Peoples against Imperialism; International Institute for Peace; International League of Culture; National Committee for the Student Congress against War; National Committee to Win the Peace; National Council for Prevention of War; National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc.; National Organizing Committee of the United States Congress against War; National Sponsors of the Enrollment for Peace; Peace Information Center; Radical Network; University of Chicago Faculty-Graduate Committee for Peace; World Congress of the Defenders of the Peace; World Council of Peace; World Peace Council; World Peace Day; World Tomorrow; and Misc., Unidentified.

Series V: Writings

Comprised of thirty subseries, items here discuss the actual or proposed plans for delivery, facilitation, or publication. Included are: Correspondence, Articles (Publications); Correspondence, Articles (Title); Correspondence, Manuscripts; Correspondence, Plays, Publishers; Correspondence, Reports; Correspondence, Royalty Statements; Appeals; Articles; Book Reviews; Broadcasts; Creeds; Debates/Dissertations; Essays; Interviews; Lectures; Manuals; Manuscripts; Memorandums; Memorials; Novels; Pamphlets; Petitions; Plays; Play Reviews; Poems; Reports; Resolutions; Short Stories; Speeches; and Misc., Unidentified, Themed Notes.

Arranged alphabetically by type of Writings by Du Bois, then others, the series holds correspondence concerning specific subjects; for example, while he was in France in 1917, Du Bois began research for a proposed massive study on African American involvement in WWI. His study was tentatively titled Black Man in the Wounded World. Despite forty plus years of never securing a publisher, or reaching satisfactory editorial arrangements, there is key correspondence with proposed editorial board members. They are Carter G. Woodson, founder of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, and editor of its Journal of Negro History; and Emmett J. Scott, special adjutant to the secretary of the War, secretary of Tuskegee Institute, and eighteen-year private secretary to Booker T. Washington. Following correspondence about his respective Writings are documents including drafts, notes, and revisions of most of his twenty published books, sustained newspaper columns, speeches, as well as copies of unpublished, or posthumously-published work.

Approximately eight boxes contain extensive field work and research from the unpublished Black Man in the Wounded World including valuable photographs, realignment of chapters, and survey responses which may be beneficial to researchers interested in primary sources regarding the African American presence in WWI. Approximately eleven boxes contain original documents of the posthumously-published The Black Flame: A Trilogy, edited by Herbert Aptheker in 1976. The drafts and revisions of this novel provide autobiographical clues and may help researchers partially dissect Du Bois' processes of engagement between self as an inquirer and the subject matter he engages. Additionally, Writings by others include such documents as a Debate argued by Alain Locke, participant, cultural pluralist philosopher, and advocate of the "New Negro" concept; Essays by E. Franklin Frazier, first African American president of the American Sociological Society and authority on the black family; Melville Herskovits, anthropologist; and Charles Wesley, pioneering African American historian. Many of the Essays were also used as Speeches by Du Bois; he marked many phrases in the works to indicate pauses and inflection to be used in delivery.

Series VI: Collected Material

The Collected Material series consist of fourteen subseries: Almanacs; Books; Booklets; Bulletins; Clippings; Journals; Magazines; Memorandums; Newsletters; Pamphlets; Press Releases; Programs; Reports; and Memorabilia. Arranged alphabetically by category, this series holds mostly copies of publications deemed significant by Du Bois; it is unclear what purposes they were intended to satisfy. The Clippings subseries is arranged alphabetically by theme and includes subjects such as colonialism, Haiti, the Niagara Movement, Booker T. Washington, and race relations. There is also information on the Fisk Revolt of 1924, the removal of Fayette McKenzie as president of Fisk University, and Du Bois' subsequent campaign for an African American to lead the historically black institution.

The last subseries is Memorabilia; it appears by itself and is arranged alphabetically by theme. Contained within the Memorabilia subseries are priceless records including those associated with Atlanta University; Birthday Celebrations; Cards; Dinners; Du Bois Clubs; Harvard; Honors/Prizes; Krigwa Players Little Negro Theatre; Maps; the Niagara Movement; Photographs; and Travel. Items such as programs and guest lists for Du Bois' 50th, 70th, 75th, and 80th birthdays, and dais listings from Nobel Prize gatherings are included. Substantial records from his Harvard baccalaureate exercises, class nights, and proceedings from his A.B. and Ph.D. graduations also are contained. A partial list of Photographs includes the Acropolis; Brown Fellowship Society of Colored People in Charleston, South Carolina; Cameroon's Moango River; Egyptian Tombs; West Virginia State College's graduation class of 1934; and an original wedding day shot of Du Bois' daughter Yolanda with famous poet and editor Countee Cullen. The last section of Memorabilia is Travel which holds valuable records associated with Du Bois' overseas travel, particularly from Japan in 1936 and from Liberia in 1923-1924.

Series VII: Miscellaneous Materials

The Miscellaneous Materials of this collection do not fall under any of the previous series and consist of one box of items including lists, scrap notes, and other unrecognized material.

Series VIII: Oversized Materials

The final series of Oversized Materials consist of six subseries: Accounts, Bills, Personal Records, & Receipts; Banners/Wall Hangings; Memorabilia & Souvenir Book; Newspapers; Photographs; and Reprints/Paid Advertisements. Nail & Parker Real Estate records are found in the Accounts, Bills, Personal Records, & Receipts subseries and the Banners/Wall Hangings subseries holds Workingmen's Education Union paraphernalia from London, England. The Memorabilia & Souvenir Book subseries is a token of appreciation presented to Du Bois while visiting Doshika University in Kyoto, Japan, in 1936 as their distinguished guest of honor. Contained within the Newspapers subseries are copies of papers from Africa's independence movement of the 1950s and 1960s including Ghana's Daily Graphic and the Evening News founded by Kwame Nkrumah, and Guinea Times. The last subseries Reprints/Paid Advertisements contains a blown-up copy of "An Appeal for Human Rights," printed in the Atlanta Journal in 1960, and of "Compagnie Algerienne" from the Algerian participation with the French in WWI.
